United Nations Operation in Cyprus

Report of the Secretary-General

Reporting period: 13 December 2023 to 12 June 2024

I. Introduction

1. The present report on the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus (UNFICYP) covers developments from 13 December 2023 to 12 June 2024. It brings up to date the record of activities carried out by UNFICYP pursuant to Security Council resolution 186 (1964) and subsequent Council resolutions, most recently resolution 2723 (2024), since the issuance of the reports of the Secretary-General dated 3 January 2024 on UNFICYP (S/2024/12) and on the mission of good offices in Cyprus (S/2024/13).
2. As at 12 June 2024, the strength of the military component stood at 800 (709 men and 91 women, or 11.4 per cent women for all ranks, compared with the global peace operations target of 12 per cent women by 2025) while that of the police component stood at 68 (45 men and 23 women, or 34 per cent women compared with the overall global target for the year 2025 of 25 per cent women) (see annex).

II. Significant developments

3. During the reporting period, the number of military violations remained high as the Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot sides proceeded with unauthorized military constructions and installations in and around the buffer zone to strengthen their defensive postures. Constraints on the mission's freedom of movement also remained in several areas, exacerbated by a record number of incursions by both Turkish Cypriot and Greek Cypriot police in the buffer zone, a direct challenge to the mission's authority. The mission undertook efforts to de-escalate tensions in and around the buffer zone further to Security Council Resolution 2373 (2024). However, while not explicitly rejecting the notion of de-escalation, neither side actively engaged in discussions to explore how this could be achieved. While the status quo ante has not been fully restored in central Nicosia, there was some positive movement by the Turkish Cypriot authorities in Waynes Keep Cemetery and UNFICYP's freedom of movement in this location was partially reestablished.
4. The situation on the Pyla/Pile plateau continued to be calm, as construction works remained suspended throughout the reporting period. UNFICYP maintained its engagement with both sides with a view to resuming the implementation of the agreed understanding.
5. In May, the decision by the Republic of Cyprus against a background of increasing migrant and refugee flows to deny access to asylum procedures to all those in the buffer zone led to an increase of migrants and refugees stranded in the buffer zone, requiring emergency humanitarian support from UNFICYP and UNHCR.

6. For the first time since November 2019, with facilitation and political engagement of UNFICYP, more than 300 pilgrims from the north crossed to the south to conduct their pilgrimage to the Hala Sultan Tekke Mosque in Larnaca.
7. In March, UNFICYP commemorated its sixtieth anniversary in Cyprus through a series of events paying tribute to the 187 peacekeepers who have fallen in the line of duty and to the more than 150,000 uniformed personnel who have served in Cyprus, from 43 troop and police contributing countries. The anniversary served as a stark reminder that the resolution of the Cyprus issue is long overdue.

III. Activities of the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus

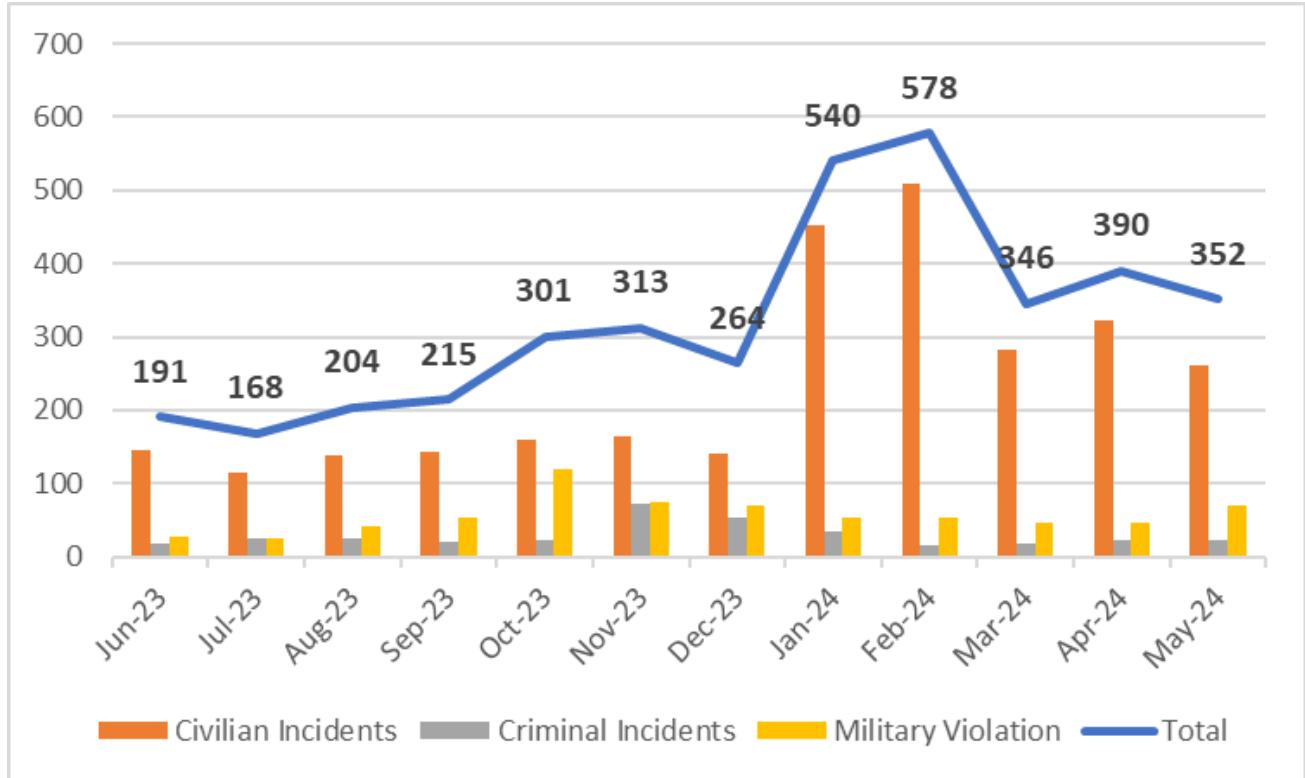

8. Although no new significant crisis emerged, the upward trend of serious military violations continued, with challenges to the mission's authority and actions altering the military status quo persisting. The reporting period was characterized by the strengthening of defensive postures by both sides in and around the buffer zone. The increased number of law enforcement incursions in the buffer zone also illustrated a growing disregard for UNFICYP's authority in the buffer zone by both sides.
9. People-to-people contacts at the community level continued and UNFICYP maintained its support for such engagements. The reporting period saw a new engagement by some segments of civil society, including women's organizations, although overall fatigue towards the enduring unresolved political process could also be felt. Divisive narratives within the two communities persisted. UNFICYP, together with the mission of good offices of the Secretary-General in Cyprus, also endorsed its first disability inclusion action plan in order to operationalize the United Nations disability strategy across both missions.

A. Prevention of tensions in and around the buffer zone

10. The progress achieved through the conclusion of an understanding on the Pyla/Pile plateau during the previous reporting period was diminished by the continued suspension of its implementation since 6 November 2023. New concerns raised at that time challenged the basis of the understandings. The mission repeatedly engaged with the sides at various levels to unblock implementation, with full impartiality as was shown from the very first engagement on this issue, that led to the conclusion of the understanding. Unfortunately, misinformation on this subject has been rife. In addition, incursions by Turkish Cypriot police into the buffer zone on the Pyla/Pile plateau, at times in civilian clothing, far exceeded those of previous periods.

11. The unauthorized 14 kilometers of concertina wire fence placed in the buffer zone by the Republic of Cyprus in 2021 and 2022, against the mission's protests, has not been removed despite previous indications that it would be.

12. In Varosha, no steps were taken to address the call made by the Security Council in its resolution 2373 (2024) for the immediate reversal of the action taken since October 2020. UNFICYP did not observe any significant change in the 3.5 per cent of the area of Varosha for which it was announced in July 2021 that the military status had been lifted in preparation for renovation; however, the mission has limited access to that area. South of the built-up part of Varosha, UNFICYP protested the establishment of a new trench and berm system by the Turkish Forces stretching nearly four kilometers along the northern ceasefire line, which, through its proximity to the buffer zone, constitutes a military violation. This is in addition to the previously reported tank emplacements, also within one kilometre of the buffer zone. Many visitors also continued to visit the parts of the town progressively made accessible to the public. The previously reported vegetation clearing, electrical work, road paving and fence building continued. UNFICYP also again observed the repeated use of commercial drone overflights, linked, in the mission's assessment, to the monitoring of civilian visits.

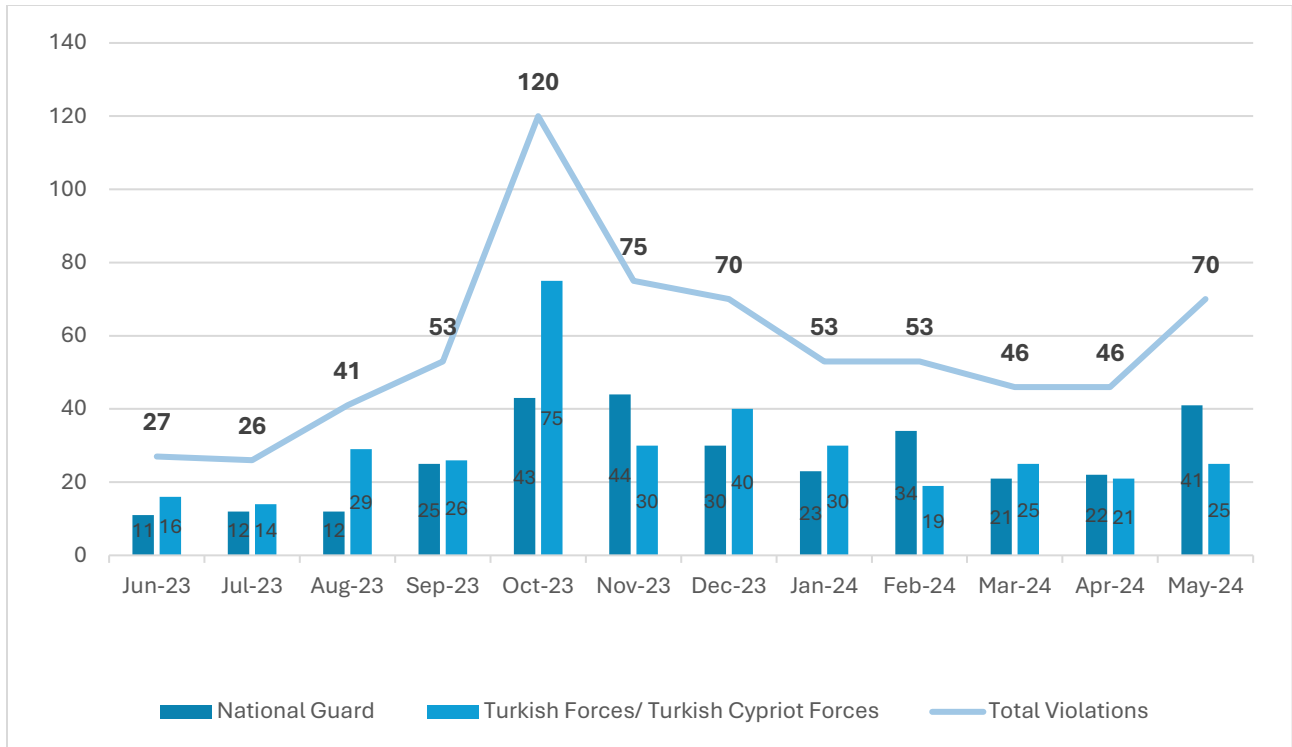

Access to the entire area of Varosha by UNFICYP patrols has remained significantly constrained since 1974.

13. In relation to the status of Varosha, UNFICYP continues to be guided by relevant Security Council resolutions. Accordingly, the mission and the Secretariat have repeatedly expressed concern over any developments in the fenced-off part of the town. The United Nations continues to hold the Government of Türkiye responsible for the situation in Varosha.
14. In Strovilia, the mission's freedom of movement remains limited and the liaison post continues to be overstaffed by Turkish Cypriot Security Forces. During the reporting period, UNFICYP observed the installation of 14 closed-circuit cameras placed on a new police container.

B. Prevention of a recurrence of fighting and maintenance of the military status quo

15. Further to Security Council resolution 2373 (2024), UNFICYP pursued efforts at the political and military level towards a de-escalation of tensions in and around the buffer zone, so far with little success. The militarization along and in proximity of the buffer zone proceeded at a high pace, through the deployment of potentially destabilizing military grade surveillance technology and defensive installations on both sides. From 13 December 2023 to 31 May 2024, the mission observed 303 military violations, 158 by the National Guard and 145 by the Turkish Forces. Among the total number of violations, 108 were considered serious as they involved permanent constructions, challenging the mission's authority in the buffer zone and the ceasefire lines.

16. The installation of advanced surveillance technology along the southern ceasefire line continued unabated. During the period under review, the Republic of Cyprus erected surveillance cameras at 31 additional sites along the buffer zone, 6 of which are located inside the buffer zone in and around Nicosia, bringing the total of such installations by the Greek Cypriots to 79. The Republic of Cyprus has explained these violations by claiming that their purpose is to monitor irregular migration. These cameras are mounted on military observation posts. In addition, the Republic of Cyprus has installed 26 large surveillance towers along the southern ceasefire line, with surveillance cameras so far installed at 6 of these sites. UNFICYP has determined that these military-grade cameras offer long-range surveillance capabilities, well beyond the buffer zone, and as such are particularly destabilizing.

17. Turkish Forces installed 4 additional camera sites during the reporting period, bringing the total of its camera installations along the northern ceasefire line to 110. Further, the camera and satellite dish installed by the Turkish Forces atop an abandoned house inside the buffer zone known as “Maria’s House” during the previous reporting period remained in place. Turkish Forces also installed six long-range surveillance towers along the ceasefire line, five of which were equipped with cameras with similar long-range capability to those installed by the Greek Cypriot forces.

¹ Figures for military violations may differ from those previously published due to subsequent revision of data based on newly available data and/or correction of error

18. In all instances, UNFICYP protested the installations and urged their removal with engagement at both the political and military levels. There was no progress on the Security Council's request to unstaff opposing forces' positions along the ceasefire lines for which certain types of cameras could be considered a reasonable replacement.
19. Both sides also maintained their prefabricated concrete firing positions in or along the buffer zone. The National Guard has 329 such positions along the southern ceasefire line, 13 of them inside the buffer zone, and during the reporting period they placed 2 additional positions in civilian residential areas in the vicinity of the buffer zone. Turkish Forces have 11 positions along the northern ceasefire line.
20. The hardening of the northern ceasefire line was further confirmed through the renovation and extension of defense trench systems along the buffer zone in the western part of the island, for the first time since 2008. Extended by 250 meters, these systems are in addition to the trench extended south of Varosha. The National Guard also maintained a trench system comprising 11 concrete bunkers on the southern ceasefire line in the middle of a civilian photovoltaic park that is partly inside the buffer zone. The mission has not achieved any progress in seeking a halt to the disguising of military positions inside civilian structures along the buffer zone by the Greek Cypriot side, despite repeatedly raising concerns regarding the ethics of such a practice and the danger this poses to civilians. Overmanning and "move forward" violations by both the Turkish Forces and the National Guard also continue to be regularly observed.
21. At the end of the last reporting period, UNFICYP's freedom of movement was obstructed by Turkish Forces in the Commonwealth War Graves cemetery known as Waynes Keep, in the buffer zone in Nicosia, and both soldiers and police at various times moved forward into the area. This amounted to a seizure of control over an area of the buffer zone they have disputed. The Special Representative of the Secretary-General engaged actively with Turkish Cypriot authorities and Türkiye to seek a return to the status quo ante and have the move forward violations addressed. UNFICYP's freedom of movement was partially restored in April, and the mission resumed regular patrols on an agreed schedule. While this does not resolve the constraints put on UNFICYP's freedom of movement in this area, it was a rare positive development during the reporting period.
22. UNFICYP continued to follow up on the call made by the Security Council in its resolution 2674 (2023) for the sides to agree on "a plan of work to achieve a mine-free Cyprus". No progress was made during the reporting period regarding the clearing of the 29 remaining suspected hazardous areas on the island, including the 4 active minefields in the buffer zone – 3 of the National Guard and 1 of the Turkish Forces. The mission's Mine Action Service has prepared options for a new phase of clearance activities, with a special focus on the buffer zone and on remaining anti-personnel mines.

C. Management of civilian activity and maintenance of law and order

23. The reporting period was marked by a record number of incursions by Turkish Cypriot police in the buffer zone, a total of 611 as of 31 May, mainly due to their heightened presence on the Pyla/Pile plateau and in Waynes Keep cemetery. In some instances, police personnel were in uniform, while in others they operated in civilian clothing. These incursions were in both cases associated with challenges to the United Nations' longstanding delineation of the buffer zone.

23 Similarly, the reporting period was marked by a record number of incursions by Greek Cypriot police (31 in total) towards the end of the reporting period, mainly presented as an effort to prevent the irregular migration. Indeed, on 15 May, UNFICYP patrols liaising with Greek Cypriot police over third country nationals in the buffer zone were informed of a new Republic of Cyprus policy refusing to allow such individuals access to asylum procedures. Greek Cypriot police and the National Guard subsequently entered the buffer zone to enforce this policy and maintained a sustained presence there. They then positioned personnel to prevent third country nationals from leaving the buffer zone towards the south. In this respect, both UNFICYP and UNHCR recalled the obligations of the Republic of Cyprus under international refugee law. As of 7 June, 29 third country nationals, including 7 minors (some unaccompanied), remain stranded in the buffer zone. UNFICYP continues to provide emergency shelter, food and other immediate necessities in close coordination with UNHCR (to be updated).

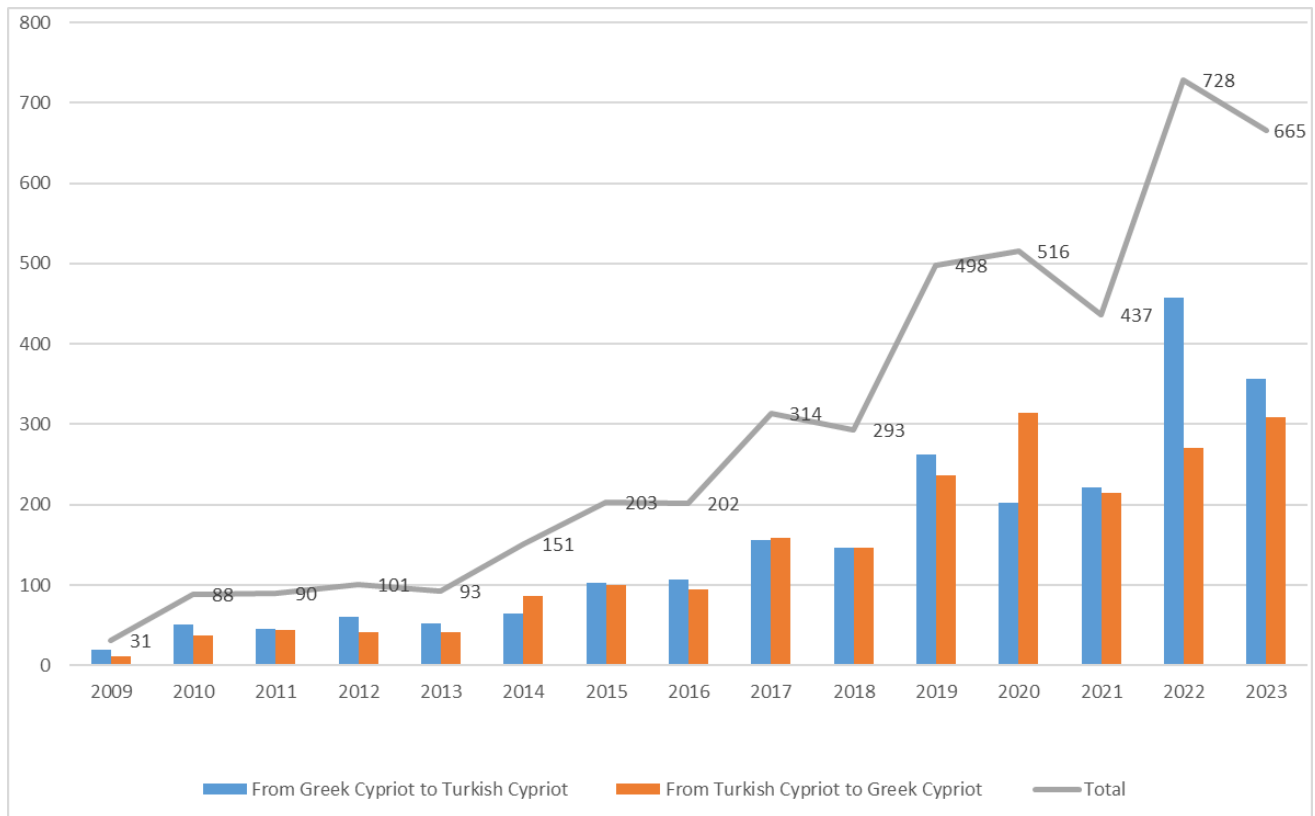

24. Prior to this, the mission had observed on nearly a dozen occasions the movement of people at night across the buffer zone, which may be linked to smuggling networks, particularly considering movement trends on the island. Based on other sources of information, the mission assesses that these cases were not isolated, although it remained constrained by its limited detection capabilities. UNFICYP continues to exchange information with both police services in this regard.

25. The reporting period also saw an increase in other civilian incursions in the buffer zone, 1,156 against 793 during the same period last year. Although these incidents were of low severity, they nonetheless complete the picture of a general erosion in the respect for UNFICYP's authority in the buffer zone. Incidents of dumping, unauthorized farming, foraging and dog training activities were observed regularly, mostly by Greek Cypriots in line with seasonal trends. In response, the mission adapted its patrols to deter such activities. Criminal incidents also occurred in the buffer zone, albeit to a lesser extent than during the previous reporting period.

26. The construction of a highway between Astromeritis and Evrichou in the south, skimming inside the edge of the buffer zone along the way, proceeded without UNFICYP’s authorization. In the mission’s engagement with the Greek Cypriot authorities, the latter have produced historical evidence which lends some support to their position that the highway’s route did not infringe upon the buffer zone, despite UNFICYP’s protests to the contrary. Although the highway does not alter the military status quo of the buffer zone or significantly erode its integrity, UNFICYP continues to consider this construction to be a violation.
27. The Joint Contact Room, under the auspices of the Technical Committee on Crime and Criminal Matters, continued to serve as an essential channel for the exchange of information on crimes and police matters between both sides of the island. During the reporting period, this cooperation led to the handover of five suspected criminals, including third country nationals. While the overall number of exchanges of information is much higher than in the past, there was a slight dip in 2023 due to the absence of the Senior Greek Cypriot member in the last half of the year. Figures for the first part of 2024 suggest that the upward trend continues this year. The Technical Committee on Crime and Criminal Matters also continued to hold monthly meetings with the facilitation of UNFICYP. More details are provided in the report on the Secretary-General’s mission of good offices in Cyprus (S/2024/xxx).

28. In the bicommunal village of Pyla/Pile, the number of illegal casinos and night clubs remained the same as during the previous reporting period (10 casinos and 1 night club). The Joint Contact Room in Pyla/Pile continued to serve as an avenue for exchange of information regarding local issues, including exchanges beyond crime-related matters. UNFICYP also established foot patrols throughout the village to increase its engagement with the local population.
29. The university in Pyla/Pile continued to operate in the buffer zone without authorization from UNFICYP. No progress was registered in resolving the matter of the large unauthorized construction project associated with the university, despite the continued engagement efforts of the mission.

D. Intercommunal relations, cooperation and trust-building

30. The reporting period saw renewed enthusiasm and interest from civil society in peace efforts. UNFICYP sustained efforts in building bridges between the communities, organizing or supporting 159 intercommunal or peacebuilding events, 23 of which focused on women or youth.
31. UNFICYP hosted an intercommunal event on the role of civil society in support of peacemaking and peacebuilding efforts over the last six decades, with the participation of 150 people from both communities, including academics and civil society activists. Participants spoke of the contributions by civil society to peace efforts on the island despite negative political discourses, and also stressed their frustration regarding the unresolved political issue and their lack of inclusion at the political level. UNFICYP also hosted over 120 participants from both communities for an intergenerational discussion on how best to support a potential future peace process. Further, as part of efforts to sensitize on UNFICYP's work in the context of the anniversary, the mission launched a public information campaign across the island to raise awareness and understanding of its role, which also contributed to efforts to counter the mis/disinformation prevalent in the public sphere.
32. During the reporting period, UNFICYP prioritized efforts to expand and diversify its audience and hosted intercommunal activities with new constituencies outside of Nicosia on a range of issues of common concern, including environmental matters, entrepreneurship, business, youth activism and sports. The mission facilitated the organization of intercommunal chess and sports tournaments to sustain intercommunal contacts, including in Pyla/Pile, where a renewed interest in intercommunal activities was observed and in Morphou/Güzelyurt where an intercommunal event was facilitated for the first time in a decade. Additionally, the joint working groups of UNFICYP and the mission of good offices on environmental peacebuilding and entrepreneurship, business, innovation, and economy respectively continued their work. The working groups held events on the role of youth in climate change and the fourth edition of the business and networking fair.

33. In this context, the technical committees continued to serve as an avenue to address issues of shared importance across the island. The Special Representative/Deputy Special Adviser engaged regularly with representatives of the two Cypriot leaders, and this dialogue served to support the work of the technical committees. More details are provided in the report on the Secretary-General's mission of good offices in Cyprus (S/2024/xxx).
34. Trade across the Green Line, regulated by Council Regulation (EC) No 866/2004 of the European Union (the Green Line Regulation), reached a record value of EUR 16 million in 2023, the highest value reached since Green Line trade began in 2004. During the reporting period, the Republic of Cyprus authorized six new products of processed food of non-animal origin for Green Line trade provided that they fulfill required standards. While the development is welcome, its practical implementation is yet to be seen as no additional trade has taken place so far.
35. The European Commission continued to encourage an increase in Green Line Trade and support Turkish Cypriot producers in particular in complying with all the necessary European Union standards and regulations to enable them to trade admitted products over the Green Line. Turkish Cypriot producers continued to make progress in addressing these requirements, including for the production of Halloumi/Hellim cheese as a European Union Protected Designation of Origin product. The European Commission's EU "One Stop Shop" also continued to serve as an avenue to facilitate Green Line trade, including by providing information on Green Line trade procedures and applicable EU standards to traders on both sides.
36. Overall, administrative, and psychological barriers continued to prevent Green Line trade from achieving its much greater potential. Such barriers also affected "reverse trade" – the sale of Greek Cypriot products to the Turkish Cypriot community, which was hampered in particular by double value added tax taxation, and by "import duties" imposed by the Turkish Cypriot local bodies. There was also limited progress concerning Turkish Cypriots' ability to open bank accounts in the Republic of Cyprus, and there was no progress in establishing an efficient payment system for Green Line trade. As a result, most such transactions continued to be cash based or required expensive transfers via several correspondent banks.
37. Representatives of Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot political parties continued to hold monthly meetings under the auspices of the Embassy of the Slovak Republic (see the report on the Secretary-General's mission of good offices in Cyprus (S/2024/xxx) for more information).

E. Facilitation of access and humanitarian functions

38. In accordance with its mandate, UNFICYP continued to engage with the Greek Cypriots and Maronites residing in the north and Turkish Cypriots residing in the south. Weekly delivery of humanitarian assistance was provided to 287 Greek Cypriots and 44 Maronites in the north and three post-mortem transfers were facilitated through the checkpoints. The mission also facilitated the transfer of textbooks for the Greek Cypriot schools in Karpas Peninsula and the appointment of teachers in the Maronite village of Kormakitis and liaised with relevant authorities on both sides to this end. Turkish Cypriot authorities rejected 44 out of 231 schoolbooks which the Greek Cypriot authorities intended to use at the Karpas schools and alleged that the language was “divisive” and not “suitable” for the peaceful coexistence of Turkish and Greek Cypriots.
39. UNFICYP also facilitated the passage of people for 36 religious and commemorative events which were held in the buffer zone or required crossings to either side. The number of requests channeled through UNFICYP that were approved by the Turkish Cypriot authorities was the same as the equivalent period in 2023. 60 per cent of requests channeled through UNFICYP were approved by the Turkish Cypriot authorities, compared to 61 per cent in the same period in 2023. A notable event during the reporting period was the resumption of the pilgrimage to the Hala Sultan Tekke Mosque in Larnaca, for the first time since 2019. With political engagement and facilitation by UNFICYP, more than 300 pilgrims from the north crossed to the south. The Religious Track of the Cyprus Peace Process, under the auspices of the Embassy of Sweden, continued its work. More details are provided in the report on the Secretary-General’s mission of good offices in Cyprus (S/2024/xxx).
40. The crossing points across the island continued to operate, although queues continued to be observed at the Agios Dometios/Metehan crossing point in Nicosia. The Technical Committee on Crossing Points met thrice during the reporting period and in a welcome development its members agreed on a detailed enlargement project for the Agios Dometios/Metehan crossing point. More details on the work of the Committee are provided in the report on the Secretary-General’s mission of good offices in Cyprus (S/2024/xxx).

F. Refugees and asylum-seekers

41. Asylum applications in Cyprus decreased significantly in 2023, with 11,617 applications, representing a decrease of 46 per cent compared to 2022. Most applicants originated from Syria (3,668), representing 83 per cent of all asylum applications submitted during the first quarter of 2024, more than three times compared to the same period last year. Arrivals shifted from a mixed migration movement to a refugee situation, with 82 per cent of Syrians arriving directly by boat to the south of the island, while the rest arriving from the northern part of Cyprus. Further, the backlog of pending applications reached 25,516 by the end of April, of whom 14,365 concerned Syrian nationals. In addition, another 5,390 applicants awaited the outcome of their appeals at the International Protection Administrative Court.

42. Between 13 December 2023 and 28 May 2024, 59 boats arrived in the south, all of them having departed from Lebanon and Syria, carrying a total of 3,221 persons onboard. A record number of 21 boats arrived within a period of two weeks between end of March and mid-April. On 13 December, a boat carrying some 90 Syrians on board, among whom 7 women and 21 children, was reported missing. Six bodies were eventually found in the northern part of Cyprus and one in the south, presumed to belong to the missing persons. Six additional bodies were found in Türkiye and two in Syria, one of whom was identified through DNA testing as one of the missing persons.
43. Further, several boats issued distress calls during the reporting period. Two children died of dehydration and four men went missing when their boats got stranded at sea in three different incidents in January and February 2024. Despite search and rescue operations, the boats were not identified before six and nine days had elapsed respectively, in the last two incidents. In addition, the increased boat arrivals led to a resumption of interceptions and returns of Syrians to Lebanon, which was halted in August 2023 following the return of 109 Syrians from Cyprus to Lebanon, and from there to Syria, contrary to the principle of non-refoulement. A boat carrying 104 Syrians was intercepted on 11 February and the group was eventually taken back to Lebanon, but was not allowed readmission. The passengers were eventually admitted to Cyprus on 13 February. Following the surge in arrivals in late March,

Cypriot coast guard vessels started patrolling the Lebanese shores as of 16 April, with five boats intercepted, carrying approximately 500 persons on board. Four boats were confirmed to have returned to Lebanon, while one has reportedly returned to Syria. On 16 May, a boat carrying 20 Syrian nationals which approached Cyprus was intercepted by the Cypriot coast guard. Its passengers were handed over to the Lebanese Navy and were subsequently returned to Syria.

44. During the reporting period, the Republic of Cyprus announced the suspension of the processing of asylum applications of Syrians. It was reported that the duration of the suspension would be 21 months, during which Syrian asylum-seekers will be hosted at reception centres and will not be entitled to receive any welfare benefits, despite the limited reception capacity. In addition, the Republic of Cyprus announced the revocation of the international protection status granted to Syrians who travelled back through the northern part of Cyprus and Türkiye in the last 12 months. By the end of the reporting period, 29 such revocations took place, as per the announcement of the Ministry of Interior.
45. The increase in the arrival of Syrian nationals regrettably led to an increase in anti-refugee and migrant sentiments. On 5 January, a bomb attack took place against the premises of a local NGO working on anti-racism, migration, asylum, and human rights, based in Nicosia.
46. Irregular arrivals through the Green Line persisted, although the percentage of the total number of asylum-seekers who arrived from the northern part decreased from 57 per cent in 2023 to 33 per cent during the first five months of the year. The lack of access to asylum procedures at the crossing points on the Green Line remains a fundamental problem, placing asylum-seekers at risk of exploitation or of being stranded in the buffer zone.
47. Since 15 May, access to the asylum procedures has also been denied to third country nationals in the buffer zone. As of 12 June, a total of 29 persons remain stranded in the buffer zone without access to basic reception conditions. Many of them have been victims of persecution, sexual exploitation, and gender-based violence and continue to face serious medical issues, including women and children with mental health conditions. Their vulnerabilities, coupled with being stranded in the buffer zone for several weeks, often in extreme heat, have led in many instances to their urgent transfer to hospitals in the Republic of Cyprus, from which however they have repeatedly been pushed back to the buffer zone, despite their explicit requests to seek asylum and their evident protection needs.

G. Gender and women and peace and security

48. In line with its mandate to advance women, peace and security efforts, UNFICYP focused its efforts on broadening engagement on gender equality with the population outside of Nicosia. As part of its Peacebuilding in Divided Societies programme, the mission worked to strengthen the capacities of intercommunal youth groups on peacebuilding, gender inclusive peace practices and negotiation and mediation skills. As an outcome of the programme, an alumni network of youth activists was created to engage on gender inclusive peacebuilding. UNFICYP is organizing activities for the alumni to enhance sustainability and to create opportunities for new partnerships. The mission also provided support to a partnership amongst civil society organizations on an initiative to challenge gender norms and stereotypes, which included a video message launched on International Women's Day that profiled Cypriot women's activism, as well as a social outreach panel discussion in Larnaca on the role of women in various aspects of public life. Furthermore, within the scope of the project, a broader social media campaign, including podcasts, profiling Cypriot women and men, was launched, addressing gender roles in the Cyprus context and efforts to challenge gender stereotypes.

49. In the context of the sixtieth anniversary of the United Nations' presence on the island, UNFICYP also organized a networking event that focused on presenting a civil society declaration, signed by researchers, politicians, academics, and other civil society members, that stressed that the continuation of the status quo is unsustainable and called for resumption of negotiations. The declaration emphasized that negotiations should ensure effective participation of women and of youth and featured both prominent women and youth activists represented within the initiative. Related to this, during the reporting period, UNFICYP, along with the Embassy of Ireland, supported the launch of the Cyprus Women Bi-Communal Coalition. Comprised of prominent women from across the divide, the coalition strives for a renewed peace process that is inclusive and transparent with women's full, equal, and meaningful participation at all levels and the inclusion of a gender perspective, along with enhanced support for women's roles in peacebuilding efforts.
50. At the internal level, the mission's military component finalized its gender action plan for the period 2024–2026, aimed at mainstreaming gender considerations in all areas. During the reporting period, the mission also held a seminar with the military component on operationalizing the women, peace and security agenda within their work, and UNPOL held a discussion forum to profile the experiences of its female personnel. Ongoing capacity development within all components also continued, focusing on topics such as the women, peace and security agenda, gender responsive peace operations, and unconscious gender bias.

IV. Committee on Missing Persons in Cyprus

51. The bicomunal teams of scientists of the Committee on Missing Persons in Cyprus, supported by the United Nations and mandated to recover, identify, and return the remains of persons who went missing during the events of 1963/64 and 1974, exhumed the remains of 16 persons during the reporting period, and seven teams of Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot scientists were carrying out excavations throughout the island at the time of drafting. Since the start of its operations in 2006, the Committee has exhumed or received the remains of 1,200 persons on both sides of the island. The European Union remains the Committee's main financial contributor.

52. To date, of 2,002 missing persons, 1,047 have been formally identified and their remains returned to their families for dignified burials, including 11 during the reporting period.
53. The Committee continued its efforts to gain access to additional information on the location of the burial sites of missing persons from the archives of countries that had maintained a military or police presence in Cyprus in 1963/64 and 1974. The Turkish Cypriot office of the Committee continued to have access to Turkish army aerial photos taken in 1974, and the Greek Cypriot office of the Committee continued to research the Republic of Cyprus National Guard archives of 1974. The Committee is also using a shared web-based geographic information system application that allows for the visualization and sharing of information among the Committee's three offices and is accessible to field- and office-based employees.

V. Conduct and discipline and sexual exploitation and abuse

54. UNFICYP continued to prioritize training and awareness raising of personnel on the United Nations policy of zero tolerance for sexual exploitation and abuse. In close coordination with the Regional Conduct and Discipline Section based at the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon, the mission implemented activities related to prevention, enforcement and remedial action regarding misconduct, including sexual exploitation and abuse, fraud and prohibited conduct in the workplace.
55. During the reporting period, UNFICYP did not receive any allegations of sexual exploitation and/or abuse.

VI. Financial and administrative aspects

56. The General Assembly, by its resolution 77/308 of 30 June 2023, appropriated the amount of $56.2 million for the maintenance of the Force for the period from 1 July 2023 to 30 June 2024, inclusive of the voluntary contribution of one third of the net cost of the Force, equivalent to $19.4 million from the Government of Cyprus and the voluntary contribution of $6.5 million from the Government of Greece.
57. As of 28 May 2024, unpaid assessed contributions to the special account for UNFICYP amounted to $19.0 million. The total outstanding assessed contributions for all peacekeeping operations as at that date amounted to $2,682.6 million.
58. Reimbursement of troop costs and contingent-owned equipment have been made for the period up to 31 December 2023.

VII. Observations

59. While UNFICYP contributed to a relative calm during the reporting period, this should not obscure the reality of gradual militarization that is underway on the island. It is regrettable that neither side has seriously engaged on the implementation of Security Council resolution 2373 (2024) which called for cooperation with UNFICYP towards a de-escalation of tensions in and around the buffer zone. Actions by both sides during the reporting period considerably altered the military status quo of the buffer zone, as unauthorized permanent constructions – especially military – multiplied despite protests and engagements by the mission. Security and military surveillance installations only serve to increase mistrust between the sides and encourage a tit-for-tat response. Similarly, the strengthening of defensive postures on both sides, through prefabricated concrete firing positions and defense trench systems among others, only prompts the strengthening of offensive preparations on the other side. These actions are destabilizing and illustrate that the buildup of military capabilities on the island is proceeding at a rapid pace, with each side seeking to gain an advantage in the buffer zone.
60. I am also concerned by the use of security arguments to justify unconnected military violations and by the use of law enforcement personnel to advance military objectives. For UNFICYP, the deployment of any equipment or construction along the ceasefire lines that has potential military application is a violation. At the same time, the policy of deliberately blurring the lines between military and civilian infrastructure by disguising military positions within civilian structures raises serious concerns as it may put civilians at risk. Similarly, the pattern of security officials operating in the buffer zone in civilian clothing remains worrisome.
61. The record number of incursions by Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot police authorities in the buffer zone, in addition to move forward violations by both sides, further signal a concerning erosion of respect for the mission's authority in the buffer zone. I am concerned by the disregard shown by both sides towards the mandated authority of UNFICYP. I appeal to both sides, in line with the repeated calls by the Security Council, to respect the mission's authority in, and delineation of, the buffer zone.
62. Beyond the buffer zone itself, I have repeatedly stressed the importance of the parties refraining from taking unilateral actions that could raise tensions and compromise a return to talks, while also calling upon all parties to engage in dialogue to resolve their differences. In that respect, I reiterate my concern over the situation in the fenced-off area of Varosha and the lack of response to the Security Council's call for a reversal of the actions taken since the announcement of the partial reopening of the fenced-off town in October 2020. I further recall the Council's decisions related to Varosha, notably its resolutions 550 (1984) and 789 (1992), and the importance of adhering fully to those resolutions, underscoring that the position of the United Nations on this matter remains unchanged. I also deplore the restrictions on the freedom of movement of UNFICYP imposed in the area and elsewhere, as in Strovilia, particularly given new military installations, and reiterate my expectation that the ability of the mission to patrol and implement its mandated activities be restored in full. I recall that the mandate provided by the Council to UNFICYP is not limited to the buffer zone but extends to the entire island. In this regard, while I am encouraged that the mission's freedom of movement was partially restored in Waynes Keep cemetery, I urge Turkish Cypriot authorities to respect the mission's mandate in the buffer zone and terminate all impediments to UNFICYP's full access to the area.

63. It is also unfortunate that the implementation of the understanding for arrangements on the Pyla/Pile plateau remained suspended during the reporting period. I once again urge both sides to work collaboratively with the mission to find a way forward. The stalled implementation of the agreement for over six months sends a concerning message and affects the overall level of trust on the island. UNFICYP will continue to support good-faith implementation of the understanding and will remain guided by the principle of impartiality in conducting its mandate.
64. Despite the tense atmosphere and the polarized political context, I am encouraged that civil society actors sustained their engagement with the UN. I continue to call for the active involvement at the political decision-making level notably, of women, minorities, youth groups and persons with disabilities. Sixty years have passed since the United Nations established its presence on the island, and we will soon reach the point where no-one remembers a time when the two communities on the island lived together in harmony. Despite the opening of crossings points 20 years ago, the more time passes the wider the divide will grow, in particular as the postures of both sides become increasingly defensive and the political narrative remains divisive. While the United Nations will continue to support all Cypriots in pursuing dialogue, it remains the case that the status quo is not static, and the long-standing lack of agreement creates further hurdles - both practical and psychological. I therefore call upon both leaders to take genuine steps towards facilitating reconciliation and supporting intercommunal contacts, while also ensuring that the voices of civil society organizations are meaningfully included at the political decision -making level.
65. Notwithstanding my repeated calls, and those of the Security Council, efforts in Cyprus to achieve greater economic and social parity between the two sides and to broaden and deepen economic, cultural and other forms of cooperation remain limited. Crossing points should facilitate the flow of traffic, and the full implementation of the Green Line Regulation would significantly help to increase the volume of trade and should be pursued with renewed vigour. Increased cross-island trade, together with deeper economic, social, cultural, sporting and other ties and contacts, would help to enhance intercommunal contacts and address the increasing concerns of the Turkish Cypriots regarding their isolation and promote trust between the communities.
66. In their efforts to promote closer cooperation between the communities, local and international actors continue to be confronted with challenges and obstacles linked to the status of the north and concerns relating to "recognition". While the United Nations policy on Cyprus is maintained and decisions of the Security Council on the matter are upheld, I reiterate that concerns about recognition should not in themselves constitute an obstacle to increased cooperation.

67. I take note of the increase in the arrival of migrants and refugees on the island in light of ongoing developments in the region and I am saddened to learn of the plight of some, including children, who have been reported missing, and in some cases have died as a result of being stranded at sea. I reiterate my strong concern regarding the pushback and interception of boats without providing the necessary protection and reiterate to all the necessity of abiding by the principle of non-refoulement. I am also concerned regarding the situation of asylum-seekers currently stranded in the buffer zone, including unaccompanied minors, with no access to asylum procedures. These recent developments underline the need to ensure that asylum seekers and irregular migrants are provided with an adequate level of support. I call on the Republic of Cyprus to rapidly resume the processing of asylum applications for all and to reinstate full access to asylum procedures, which would go a long way towards preventing smuggling and trafficking of individuals and other irregular movements.
68. I would like to thank the partners, in particular the European Commission, that have provided support for the work of both the United Nations missions in Cyprus, the United Nations Development Programme and the Committee on Missing Persons in Cyprus, and that have contributed to the implementation of important confidence-building measures. I also thank the 43 countries that have contributed troops, police or both to UNFICYP since 1964 and pay tribute to the 187 peacekeepers who have lost their lives in the service of peace in Cyprus.
69. Finally, I express my gratitude to my Special Representative in Cyprus, Head of UNFICYP and Deputy Special Adviser on Cyprus, Colin Stewart, for his leadership of the United Nations presence on the island. I also express my appreciation to all the women and men serving in UNFICYP for their steadfast commitment to the implementation of the mandate of the mission and the cause of peace on the island.
